MYKITA is a modern manufactory that combines precision craftsmanship with new technologies. A constant search for innovation, the visionary use of materials and a wealth of experience in eyewear design are the defining elements behind MYKITA's collections.

A key factor in the company's success is its holistic business philosophy, which brings together expertise from all disciplines under a single roof, the MYKITA HAUS. It thrives on the power of a self-contained network that enables interdisciplinary research and the transfer of technologies. This all-encompassing mentality is also reflected in the MYKITA Shops; the unique retail concept unites the firm's own design principles with optical precision made in Germany.

Collection NO1 laid the foundation for MYKITA. Fashioned from stainless steel sheets, the frames are made into a three-dimensional structure through a series of bending and folding steps, similar to the Japanese art of origami. The modern principle behind the openly displayed spiral hinge represents the design approach that has informed all subsequent MYKITA collections: The technical solution must also be an aesthetic one.

Classic panto shapes of the Thirties, strong lines of the Sixties or the oversize forms of the Seventies and Eighties – the DECADES collection interprets historical eyewear styles for the here and now. The distinctive aesthetic of the models stems from the translation of classic forms into a modern MYKITA construction.

Defined by slender silhouettes and simple constructions, the LITE collection represents the lightest glasses by MYKITA. Whether made entirely in slender stainless steel or in a material mix where the warmth of acetate meets the sleekness of steel in an elegant connection, the reduced LITE design concept stands for supreme comfort and a refined aesthetic.

Based on a barely visible construction, MYKITA LESSRIM is a collection of ultra-light glasses that blend seamlessly into the facial features. Fine rims hold the lenses without the need for perforation, creating a floating appearance. Only 0.5 millimetres wide, the stainless steel rim lies flush in the groove of the lens perimeter leaving a faintly shimmering outline. Pure shapes meet with subtle metallic colourways and understated functional detailing for a reduced, virtually translucent aesthetic.

Maison Margiela is a French fashion house founded in Paris in 1988 by Belgian designer Martin Margiela.

Both masculine and feminine, oftentimes fusing the two genders, the brand's universe can be described as conceptual and enigmatic, mysterious and iconoclast. Today, the House is recognized internationally for its unique approach to modern elegance.

Since 2014, the Maison thrives under the guidance of Creative Director Mr John Galliano. He reveals a new aesthetic, marrying his own poetic vision with the codes of the house of Margiela.

MYKITA STUDIO represents the creative core of the modern manufactory. The eponymously named eyewear line is a showcase for high-fashion concepts – uncompromising designs that reflect the aesthetic zeitgeist. Conceived as a design series, each new instalment starts with a clean slate. With no existing restraints or commitments MYKITA STUDIO illustrates a moment in time. A central idea pursued to its consequent, physical manifestation.

MYKITA MYLON stands for avant-garde design executed in an easily adaptable, exceptionally light and highly durable material. A high-tech product in every respect, equal parts fashion and sport. MYKITA MYLON is made using a 3D printing technology called Selective Laser Sintering by which a laser melts and binds fine polyamide powder layer-by-layer into a user-defined form. The unmistakable look and feel is achieved by a proprietary multi-step surface finishing treatment many years in development.

MYKITA MYLON HYBRID presents classic shapes in a novel material mix of stainless steel and the matt laser sintered polyamide, MYLON. The line embodies the core competences of MYKITA's modern manufactory: precision craftsmanship and the use of advanced technologies.
The supremely light and comfortable models convey con- temporary and refined style.

The tinted lenses from optical specialist Zeiss provide maximum glare control and 100% protection from UV rays.

Collection NO1 laid the foundation for MYKITA. Fashioned from stainless steel sheets, the frames are made into a three-dimensional structure through a series of bending and folding steps, similar to the Japanese art of origami. The modern principle behind the openly displayed spiral hinge represents the design approach that has informed all subsequent MYKITA collections: The technical solution must also be an aesthetic one.

All the tinted lenses of the collection NO1 SUN have an antireflective coating on the reverse side, offering total defence from UVA and UVB rays as well as maximum glare protection. The majority of models are fitted with MYKITA MY+ lenses that are either polarised, or polarised and photochromic.

Classic panto shapes of the Thirties, strong lines of the Sixties or the oversize forms of the Seventies and Eighties – the DECADES collection interprets historical eyewear styles for the here and now. The distinctive aesthetic of the models stems from the translation of classic forms into a modern MYKITA construction.

All the tinted lenses of the DECADES collection come with an antireflective coating on the reverse side and offer total defence from UVA and UVB rays as well as maximum glare protection.

Defined by slender silhouettes and simple constructions, the LITE collection represents the lightest glasses by MYKITA. Whether made entirely in slender stainless steel or in a material mix where the warmth of acetate meets the sleekness of steel in an elegant connection, the reduced LITE design concept stands for supreme comfort and a refined aesthetic.

All the tinted lenses of LITE SUN collection have an anti-reflective coating on the reverse side, offering total defence from UVA and UVB rays as well as maximum glare protection. The majority of models are fitted with MYKITA MY+ lenses that are either polarised, or polarised and photochromic.

Entertainer and enfant terrible: fashion designer Bernhard Willhelm is a little bit of both. MYKITA and the Paris and L.A.-based designer collaborate since 2009. From sun visor to coloured gradient lenses or eighties-style aviator frames – just like the fashion designs of Bernhard Willhelm, these models blend innovative designs and cues from the world of contemporary culture to form independent creations.

Maison Margiela is a French fashion house founded in Paris in 1988 by Belgian designer Martin Margiela.

Both masculine and feminine, oftentimes fusing the two genders, the brand's universe can be described as conceptual and enigmatic, mysterious and iconoclast. Today, the House is recognized internationally for its unique approach to modern elegance.

Since 2014, the Maison thrives under the guidance of Creative Director Mr John Galliano. He reveals a new aesthetic, marrying his own poetic vision with the codes of the house of Margiela.

MYKITA STUDIO represents the creative core of the modern manufactory. The eponymously named eyewear line is a showcase for high-fashion concepts – uncompromising designs that reflect the aesthetic zeitgeist. Conceived as a design series, each new instalment starts with a clean slate. With no existing restraints or commitments MYKITA STUDIO illustrates a moment in time. A central idea pursued to its consequent, physical manifestation.

MYKITA MYLON stands for avant-garde design executed in an easily adaptable, exceptionally light and highly durable material. A high-tech product in every respect, equal parts fashion and sport. MYKITA MYLON is made using a 3D printing technology called Selective Laser Sintering by which a laser melts and binds fine polyamide powder layer-by-layer into a user-defined form. The unmistakable look and feel is achieved by a proprietary multi-step surface finishing treatment many years in development.

All MYKITA MYLON sunglasses are fitted with lenses from optical specialist Zeiss, providing maximum glare control and 100 percent protection from UV rays. A golden anti-reflective coating on the inside of the lenses minimises distracting reflections, while the scratch resistant and hydrophobic nano-coating ensures best possible vision in all conditions and makes the lenses easy to clean.

The HYBRID line exemplifies beauty in construction by bringing together two core competences of the modern manufactory: precision craftsmanship and advanced technologies. Stainless steel joins the laser sintered MYLON via effortless click-in connections that use the unique performance of the individual materials to full effect.

Guard One is a protective eyewear shield with anti-fog technology, developed with medical practitioners for optimal functionality and wearing comfort. Worn with other personal protection equipment, such as face and respiratory masks, the protective shield works to reduce the risk of viral infection. With an exchangeable shield and a sporty design language, the versatile Guard One can be worn as clear safety glasses or a protective sunshield whenever functional eye protection is necessary

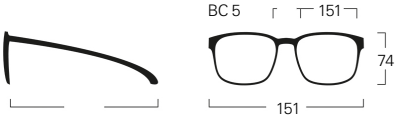

Manufactured to the highest standards in Germany, Guard One combines personal protection with the aesthetic principles of award-winning eyewear design.
